WILSON VETO OF FINANCE MEASURE IS OVERRIDDEN

Billion Dollars To Aid Farmers' Exports Is Scheme

MUST BORROW

Corporations Benefitting From Former Bill Depended On

(Reuter's Service)

Washington, Jan. 5.—The House of Representatives has again passed the War Finance Corporation Bill, which now becomes law, despite President Wilson's veto.

Revival of the War Finance Corporation means the provision of a credit of $1,000,000,000 to enable farmers to export their surplus products to foreign markets that want to buy but are unable to pay cash.

OPPOSED BY OFFICIALS

David F. Houston, Secretary of the Treasury, appearing as a witness before the joint Senate and House committees on agriculture, opposed the revival of the War Finance Corporation as a means of providing financial relief for the farmers of the country. He declared such a step would mean the borrowing by the corporation of a huge sum and that the resultant evil would more than off-set any temporary relief the farmers might receive. Such action, he said, would also put the Government back into the banking business, which he considered unwise.

Governor Harding of the Federal Reserve Board, who also gave his views, supported in all essentials the stand taken by the Secretary of the Treasury. Governor Harding contended that the cure for the evil was one that called for the co-operation of all elements, bankers, producers, distributors and consumers. There was too much hysteria, and the time was at hand for everybody to join in an effort to bring about a more settled state of mind on the part of all the people.

EXPORTS HAVE INCREASED

Senator Norris, acting Chairman of the joint committees, asked Secretary Houston if, in his opinion, a revival of the War Finance Board would help in the present emergency.

"I have," replied the Secretary, "doubts that such would be the case."

The General Electric Company, the Baldwin Locomotive Works, and the Harvester company received over 50 percent of the aid extended by the corporation after the armistice, continued the Secretary. The total operations of the corporation were about $48,000,000 between the time Congress authorised it to continue its work and the suspension of its activities. The people aided by the corporation were, in large part, the ones best able to finance themselves.

"Furthermore," continued the Secretary, "I do not think that in time of peace it is advisable for the Treasury Department to continue in the banking business, thus paralleling the activities of the regular banking institutions. I should think that, taking the situation as a whole, if it is deemed advisable to secure a large volume of exports, we had better continue under present conditions and facilitate the organisation of export corporations under the provisions of existing laws. One such corporation has already been organised in the South and another is about to be organised in Chicago."

If revived, the Finance Corporation would have to borrow money from the very people who were now financing exports, and this might "add very largely to the borrowing the Government is now compelled to make." As for Germany's buying powers, it was impossible, until the extent of her reparation obligations was determined, to estimate the value of any market Germany could offer.

WILL HAVE TO BORROW

"Has the Finance Corporation any available funds at this time?" asked Senator Norris.

"Only what it can borrow," replied Secretary Houston.

If Europe could put up good security, Europe, the Secretary said, could be financed. He did not think the Treasury of the United States should be asked to

Train Deserted On Main Line Causes Head-On Collision

(Staff Wire To The China Press)

Kuantien, Jan. 5.—A head-on collision occurred at Kuantien station along the Tientsin-Pukow Railway tonight at 8:30 between the express up train No. 2 and the slow 9 o'clock down train No 9.

The No. 9 train was standing on the wrong track without headlight or attendants. No serious injuries to the passengers resulted. But the locomotives and the coaches are locked together and derailed. It is doubtful whether either can leave the station before tomorrow morning.

ROSSI ADMITS SHOOTING CONSIC IN CAFE BRAWL

French Sailor, Shot Near Naval Club Bar, Has Chance Of Recovery

The French seaman, Alfonse Consic, who was shot in a brawl which started in the Naval Club Cafe, near the corner of Seward and Boone Roads, New Year's Day, was reported to be still in a critical condition at the St. Mary's Hospital last night. It is believed, however, that he has a good chance to recover.

Following the break of the story in yesterday's paper the local police made an investigation, getting several versions of the affair. The proprietress of the Naval Club bar stated that the shooting did not occur in that place, and the seamen involved corroborated her, insofar as that they stated that the climax to the quarrel came outside the cafe.

STARTS IN CAFE

According to the story of the wounded man, Alfonse Consic, of the crew of the Commandant Marges, he and his chum, one Jean Solomon, were seated at a table in the bar on the afternoon of the first. Three other seamen from their ship, by name Gionanonni, Le Coler and Paul Rossi, were seated at another table. A dance tune was struck up and Consic went to the other table and engaged a barmaid who was seated there for a dance. Shortly thereafter the proprietress told the guests that the place was to be closed and asked everyone to leave.

When the crowd had got outside, according to Consic's story, Rossi started a quarrel about his having danced with the barmaid and in the course of the argument pulled out a 22 calibre automatic and shot Consic in the right side of the abdomen.

TAKEN TO HOSPITAL

Rossi, Giovanonni and Le Coler ran off, Consic stated, and the wounded man staggered against a wall on Boone Road. His friend, Solomon who had seen the shooting, called a ricsha and took his comrade along Boone Road into the Broadway where he saw an unocuppied automobile. Commandeering the machine, he drove to the South Manchurian Railway Wharf and took Consic aboard the French Mail liner Paul Lecat. Here the ship's doctor attended to the wounded man and then ordered him placed in the car again and taken to St. Mary's Hospital, where he was operated upon and where he lies at present.

In the meantime Rossi, Giovanonni and Le Coler had returned to the ship and had reported to the captain and when Detective Sergeant J. Litargne of the French police visited the vessel, Rossi was handed over.

ADMITS SHOOTING

According to the report given the Settlement police by the French Police Department, Rossi has confessed to the shooting and has stated that he threw the pistol into the Hongkew Creek as he passed over the Seward Road bridge. He says that the shooting was done after the party had emerged from the Naval Club bar.

The Settlement police, as reported in yesterday's issue, knew nothing of the affair until they read of it in the newspapers. On the evening in question, however, a Chinese Police Constable on duty at the corner of Boone and Seward Roads—about 30 yards from the Naval Club Cafe entrance—reported to Hongkew station at 6:10 p.m. that there had been a fight between three civilians, who had afterward disappeared in the direction of the Garden Bridge. A ricsha coolie had afterward informed the C.P.C. that the men had drawn

Electioneering Oratory To Be Turned On Voters Of Frenchtown On Monday

Meeting Is Called At Town Hall To Hear Views Of Candidates For Council Membership

Things are warming up in the good old traditional pre-election style over in the French Concession, where they are preparing to name three French and three foreign members of the Municipal Council next Wednesday.

As regards the foreign members there is no contest, only three candidates appearing, but five names have been proposed for the French representation and there's to be a meeting of the Concession's ratepayers at the Municipal Hall on Monday when the contestants will have opportunity to train the compelling guns of oratory upon the voters.

The main topic for campaign eloquence will naturally be the controversy between the Council and the French Tramway, Electricity and Waterworks Company but as an election issue this is expected to result in rather a lopsided sort of bombardment, since both the new candidates and the outgoing councillors are pretty well aligned on the side of the Municipality in the matter. However, it is hinted that there may develop some opposition.

The meeting will be held at 5:30 p.m. and will be conducted and addressed in English and it is hoped that all foreign as well as French residents of the Concession will attend.

Among the proposed new candidates for the French membership are Mr. P. Mailly, electrical engineer and a Professor of Aurora University; Dr. Tartois, partner of the firm of Chapeaux Freres, who, together with Mr. Albert Chapeaux, has made a special study of all the questions at present in dispute between the Council and the Tramway and Electric Company; Mr. A. Arnaud Coste and Mr. L. Pernot, Mr. R. Fano, outgoing councillor who has been active in the fight against the Tramway Company, will be a candidate for re-election. All are expected to have some interesting things to say when next Monday's meeting gets under way.

The probable foreign candidates are Mr. W. J. N. Dyer, Mr. M. Speelman and Mr. K. H. Martin.

Crozier's Views On Mexico May Have Affect Here Regarding Intervention

(China Press Correspondent)

Peking, Jan. 4.—Major-General William Crozier, retired chief of ordnance of the United States Army, and the man who had the most to do with the supply of ordnance to the American Army during the war with Germany, has given an interview to The China Press Correspondent upon the subject of intervention in Mexico, which may have a relation to outside intervention in China.

Major-General Crozier, who is at present spending a month in Peking on his leisurely way around world, is known as an active advocate of the benevolent intervention of the United States in Mexican affairs.

His speech before the Cleveland Chamber of Commerce last Spring in which he proposed the effective taking over of all government, national and local in Mexico, by means of an adequately large American military force, and the administration of the country for the welfare of the people at large until such time as education of the Mexican masses has fitted them to hold their own under a democratic self-government against the tendency of the military and favored civilian class to enslave them, has become well-known in this part of the world, inasmuch as Japanese imperialists have attempted to utilise the General's arguments for American intervention in Mexico to justify a policy of Japanese intervention in China.

EXPLAINS HIS ATTITUDE

The editor of the Kobe Japan Chronicle recently attacked the arguments of General Crozier, especially from the standpoint of their giving ground to the Japanese imperialists in their designs upon the Asiatic mainland. The vigorous article of the Chronicle was republished in one of the Peking papers, and the General, who has lately come to Peking, has seen fit to make clear through the public press that he himself has no desire to see his arguments used to encourage or justify foreign intervention in China, and that in his opinion they do not allow of such implication.

Major-General Crozier states that the fundamental bases of a justifiable foreign benevolent intervention must be: First, a most extremely miserable condition of the people which cries for amelioration from the humane standpoint; second, a tested and proved benevolent motive actuating the intervening power; and third, a military and administrative ability upon the part of that power to take over the government of the disrupted nation entirely, quickly and efficiently, and so thoroughly that every remote locality will be brought absolutely under control.

LACK OF PARALLEL

All these three conditions exist, argues the General, in the case of the United States as toward Mexico. They do not exist, he states, in the case of Japan as toward China. The lack of parallel between the two cases he details as follows:

In the first case, the people of China, although greatly in need of administrative reform, suffer from no government rather than misgovernment.

They are, says the General, who has personally observed conditions in both countries (he has been interested in affairs in China since his participation in the suppression of the Boxer uprising) infinitely better off in the fundamentals of security of life and property than the people of Mexico. They are, it is true, subjected to great suffering by out-of-hand military bodies and brigands, and they are compelled to bear the brunt of the resort to force of military chieftains whose ambitions clash.

Suffering from these cases is, however, spasmodic and localised rather than continuous and widespread, and the people have enough backbone to effectively resist the bitter tyranny and plundering-at-will inflicted by the civilian and military oligarchy of Mexico upon the long-suffering populace.

POLITICAL EVOLUTION

In addition, the people of China have, since the patriotic renaissance, convinced the world that they are upon the high-road of political evolution, and need, not guardianship, but friendly and unoffensive aid and instruction, offered in the

Imperial Pacific Fleet Is Myth, Says London

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 5.—Considerable interest has been aroused in Dominions circles in London by the announcement in one of the London newspapers, asserting that a Canadian naval squadron was being transferred to the Pacific, where it would co-operate with the United States fleet.

This statement has received especially publicity in Australia, where unauthorised comment talks of the creation of an Imperial Pacific Fleet, to which the Royal Navy, and Canada, Australia and New Zealand would contribute.

However, inquiries by Reuter in London fail to elicit the slightest confirmation of the foregoing statement. Indeed, it is asserted that Canada, while sympathetic, from the Imperial point of view, to the creation of an Imperial Pacific Fleet, wishes nothing so much as to be left to develop her internal resources.

It is further pointed out that the original statement emanated from the United States, and there is nothing whatever to hand on the subject from Canada.

It may be further mentioned that the orders for some of the Canadian warships to be sent to the Pacific were given some weeks ago, before the vessels left Great Britain, the intention of the Canadian authorities being that they should appear on both shores.

SOLDIERS BEAT AMBUSCADE BY SMOKE SCREEN

First Time Attack Of Kind On Large Scale Has Been Defeated

LEAVE AMMUNITION

Dublin Communique Fails To Confirm Report Of Death List

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 5.—A party of soldiers who were ambushed near Kanturk, in County Cork, routed their assailants, killing 16 of them, and capturing many others, with all their rifles and ammunition.

This is the first occasion in which an ambush on a large scale has been effectively beaten.

It occurred on a secluded stretch of roadway, and the intended victims were three military lorries on their way from Mallow.

First a bomb was thrown, but this missed its objective. Revolver firing ensued, to which the troops replied, and a fusillade was set up on both sides of the road.

Then some of the soldiers, with the aid of a smoke-screen, made a sortie, and rounded up all their assailants. Not one of the troops was injured.

ASSAILANTS ROUTED

Later.—A Dublin communique does not confirm the reported killing of 16 Sinn Feiners in the Kanturk ambush, but it says that the assailants were routed, leaving their ammunition, and it is believed that they suffered heavy casualties. The troops, who numbered a dozen, in two lorries, sustained no casualties, adds the communique.

London, Jan. 5.—Despite continued lawlessness in Ireland, there are growing indications that the Government and Sinn Fein leaders are on the eve of important conferences, from which high expectations are drawn.

It is generally believed that De Valera has landed in Ireland, and he is thought to be in Dublin although his whereabouts is closely hidden. It is reported from Dublin that he is assuming leadership of the "intellectuals" or moderate party, intent on a pacific settlement, who directly opposed the extremists who are striving to attain their aims by violence.

CARSON TO RETIRE

The Government is apparently prepared, not only to grant De Valera safe conduct, but also to deal with him direct. It is surmised that negotiations will be pursued on the basis of revision of the Home Rule Act. Meantime, the South of Ireland is awakening to the advantages offered by the Act. The Government expects to have the Northern Parliament constituted three months hence. Candidates are already being selected and it is understood that Sir James Craig will be the first Premier. Sir Edward Carson will not take office in the Ulster administration, but has decided to retire.

Newport News, Jan. 5.—Mr. Peter McSwiney, brother of the late Lord Mayor of Cork, has arrived here as a stowaway.

Dollar Princess In Athens Embraced By Queen Mother

American Millionaire's Money Aids Constantine

Princess Christopher, formerly Mrs. William B. Leeds, and the Queen Mother of Greece.

ATHENS, Dec. 3 (By mail).—Distinguished exiles are flocking back to Greece. Relatives of the Royal Family, including Princess Christopher, formerly Mrs. Leeds, arrived in Athens tonight.

She and her party, coming from Venice by passenger steamer, were trans-shipped to a Greek destroyer off Patras, on board of which were Princess Andrew and Christopher and Mr. Rhallis, Jr., Minister of Marine. At Piraeus the arrivals were welcomed by Queen Mother Olga, who is also Regent, and a Ministerial deputation.

ROYAL RECEPTION

The Princess, on setting foot on the land of her adoption, was tenderly embraced by the Queen Mother.

Unhappily the destroyer was late, and night had already fallen, to the great disappointment of the crowds which had waited throughout the afternoon in the hope of seeing and giving a cordial welcome to the new Princess, whose charm and wealth and the liberality with which she has financed the cause of Constantine have made a striking appeal to the Greek imagination.

CITIZENS TAKE HOLIDAY

The citizens of Athens, too, had decreed themselves another holiday, and throughout the afternoon had lined the route on the outskirts of the city, watching for the coming of "the Dollar Princess," as she is already familiarly called in Athens. These same Athenians were bitterly disappointed, because the unpunctuality of the destroyer had intervened between themselves and a glimpse of the American woman of fabulous wealth who has united herself to Greece and her destinies.

For the moment the coming of Princess Christopher overshadowed the expected advent of Constantine.

KIANGSU TO DEFY PEKING; INCOME TAX FIGHT OPENS

Associated Chambers Of Commerce Dispatch An Ultimatum

FIX CONDITION

Government Is Told It Must Comply With Terms Imposed

The Associated Chambers of Commerce in Kiangsu will recognise China's exaction of income tax only under eight conditions, according to a memorandum filed yesterday with the Cabinet and the Presidential Office. Without compliance with these conditions, the chambers stated, they will not recognise the tax in spite of the highest degree of pressure.

The conditions under which they will pay the tax are:

1. All inequitable points regarding the tax itself must be eliminated.
2. All other oppressive taxes must be abolished and proper protection given to laborers and merchants.
3. People themselves should have the right of supervision over the expenditure of the returns of the tax.
4. The funds raised should be utilised for improvement of the police system and other social betterments.
5. The Government must declare openly that the tax will not be offered as security for any foreign loans.
6. The Government must first carry out its program of disarmament and also curtail all unnecessary expenses.
7. A yearly budget must be presented by the Government to show the proposed use of the tax.
8. The resolution to exact the tax must first be passed by a properly convened Parliament.

It is understood that Peking intends to collect this new revenue beginning on January 1, 1921. But in view of the strenuous opposition in the provinces, it has been silent. It is likely that the government will bring up the matter again shortly, and will offer it as security for a foreign loan as soon as the opposition becomes less strong.

Mr. Baker said this was essential for the joint annual maneuveres of regulars, national guards and reservists.

FORMOSA NATIVES QUIT FOLLOWING AIR EXHIBITION

Fiercest Tribe Surrenders When Japanese Power Is Made Plain

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio (by mail).—A Tainan special to the Tokio Nichi Nichi reports that a recent air demonstration carried out by the Japanese guards in Formosa had a greater effect than was hoped for upon the insubordinate aborigines. Among others, the Kochabokan tribe, known as the fiercest natives, offered to surrender a few days ago.

The subjugation of this strongest tribe will lead, it is expected by the authorities, to the complete suppression of the aborigines in the Southern quarters in the near future.

"The subjugation of the aborigines is one of the most difficult tasks confronting the authorities responsible for the administration of the Island," stated one of the local authorities in Formosa, the despatch says, "and a considerable loss of life and a large amount of time and money have so far been spent in punitive purpose.

"The satisfactory tendency of late has been that the aborigines are apparently beginning to realise that any further resistance would be not only futile but even against their own welfare. It will not be a long matter, under these circumstances, before the complete pacification of the natives is realised, to the benefit of the governing and the governed people alike."

"I want to suggest," he continued, "to all here that nothing more fateful could happen to this nation than to embark on an unsound banking or fiscal policy. If, even in a measurable degree some of the schemes now suggested were adopted, we would be confronted with a situation from the effects of which we would not recover for many years. I hope we all realise that our hardships are part of the struggle we have engaged in and we must bear with them as we did in the war."

Self First Thought Of Japan Laborers; Object To Religion

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, (by mail).—An interesting sidelight on the mental attitude of laborers in Japan was obtained a few days ago by the authorities in the Social Affairs Bureau of the Municipal Office.

According to the Jiji, a thousand representative workers of Japan were asked the following questions:

(1) Which is the most important to the workers—the State, Society or self?

(2) What religion do you believe in?

The majority of the workers replied that, to them, self was the first consideration. With regard to religion, a considerably larger portion stated that they preferred not to pin their faith to any religion.

Reconstruction Of Japanese Forts Is Making Progress

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Tokio, (by mail).—The reconstruction of the fortresses at Uraga, Kata, Yura and Imahary is in progress, reports the Jiji, in accordance with the fortress reconstruction scheme passed by the Diet in the last session.

The journal reports, further, that a new fortress will also be constructed in the Loochoo Islands, and another in the Bonin Islands, thus completing the first defensive lines on the Pacific.

The preliminary land survey has been completed, and the work will be taken in hand early next April. It is reported that the construction and reconstruction of the above fortresses is no new scheme, but was laid down many years ago.

U.S. Will Keep Out Of Cuban Affairs

Washington, Jan. 5.—Assurances that the United States is not contemplating military intervention in Cuba have been given to the Cuban Minister by Mr. B. G. Davis, the acting Secretary of State.

Britons Agree To Council Meeting At Paris January 19

German Disarmament Will Be Discussion Subject At Meeting

The British Government is now in possession of all the necessary documents, particularly the report of Marshal Foch. Its Chief representative will not come to Paris with a cut-and-dried decision, but the measures to be taken will be decided on by the Supreme Council in Paris after a fresh and joint discussion of the facts.

Furthermore, the Council will discuss the question of reparations, and the Greek situation.

The meeting of the Conference of Experts, which was fixed for the 11th in Brussels, will be postponed for a few days, in order to allow the delegates to complete their reports.

Will Not Examine Yankee Passports In S. M. R. Zone

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, Jan. 6.—America is completing negotiations with Japan for the abolition of the examination of passports of Americans travelling along the South Manchurian Railway by Japanese officers. The abolition is made on the ground that the necessity for the examination of passports in that zone has ceased to exist. The restriction was established by mutual agreement as a war measure in 1918.

(Reuter's Pacific Service).

Peking, Jan. 6.—The American Legation yesterday addressed a note to the Japanese Legation, repeating its note of November 2 last, which stated that the United States was withdrawing her recognition of the Japanese right to examine passports in Manchuria, to which America agreed as a war measure. The note adds that American consuls in Manchuria have been notified accordingly. The Japanese Legation has not yet replied to the former note.

The American contention is that the agreement was only given owing to the circumstances of the war and should automatically have ceased with the end of the war. The Japanese view is that the measure which contained the regulation, issued by the Kwangtung Government in 1918, is still necessary for protection of the Japanese Railway, and Japan is entitled to enforce it, with or without foreign sanction.

Sze Given Farewell By London Diplomats

He was glad that a man like Mr. Sze was going to Washington. Whatever happened to China, he added, she would have the sincere support of Great Britain, America and Japan.

In responding, Mr. Sze spoke of the usefulness of organisations like the Japan, China and Asiatic Societies in spreading knowledge and improving international relations.

Countrysides Infested By Brigands; Soldiers Wild

By A Missionary Engaged In Famine Relief

In the neighbornood of Weihsien city Chihli soldiers have become an unmitigated curse. Circumstances are leading people to feel that far from checking the border robbers they are on good understandings with them, while they themselves come down on rich and poor alike for "contributions" of grain, fodder, and clothes—a little haul of coin on the side not being despised.

The robbers with the exception of some from across the border, seem moved by kindlier motives. At Fang Chia Ying some 25 li from Weihsien, quite a roundup of the wealthy inhabitants was made a few weeks ago. As the robbers went from house to house, stores of grain were opened up, chests of clothing broken open, and the poor were dressed and dined beyond the style even of better days. Copper coins and small cash were heaped up in the streets later to be bartered at considerable discount for silver dollars.

For in truth like their distinguished prototype, the Chinese Robin Hoods are not impelled by a purely philantrophic impulse but are after plunder in the easiest transportable and convertible form. While frankly aiming at the lions share, they, however, show real sympathy for those who weaker than themselves, are passively facing the fate that they are desperately striving to avert.

SOLDIERS QUARREL

By no means the same can be said of the soldiers—truly a costly worthless crew. Let alone being able to keep peace in the community, they are not able to keep peace among themselves.

A scrap between two companies occurred a fortnight ago in Weihsien city with the consequence they had to be separated by the distance of a whole hsien. Unfortunately for the peace of Pinghsiang Hsien—perhaps on that very score—one company was landed there. Before that unhappy date there had been some hope in that hsien, for the robber bands that early in the autumn had terrorised the people there had either been dispersed or driven out by the energetic efforts of the hsien magistrate and his worthy police force of seventy. To this little hsien already hard hit by famine and harrassed by robbers the coming of the troops spelt despair. The selling of p'ing t'iao grain was discontinued, the larger stores put up their doors, and all business came to a standstill.

The fear of starvation was in very truth upon the little city of Pinghsiang, for not only had they themselves to feed, but also the soldiers exactions to meet. In desperate effort bred of despair, and with consummate tact the magistrate managed to get the soldiery moved. They have now settled down on a district, Chuchou, much less able to support them, but with a much less energetic magistrate!

Stories are current that the rich escaping from the robbers in the country to the soldiers in the city have only jumped from the frying pan into the fire.

POVERTY IS APPALING

It is not only the rich who are being reduced to poverty, for a great section also of the middle class in these areas who might by the strictest economy have been able to subsist through the winter, will by these high-handed demands of the soldiery fast become wholly dependent upon public beneficience. With the already superfluous number of these "Protectors of the Peace," with the military exchequer in its present bankrupt state two brigades are at this very time hard at work in this area recruiting new troops. At the same time two relief societies are pouring money and grain into the very same district. How much longer will the general public which is denying itself to support Peter, permit Peter to be robbed to pay Paul?

When you ask the people why the local magistrates do not ask the soldiers to come and drive off the brigands they tell you that the soldiers co-operate with the brigands in the following way. There is first a parley. Then the soldiers make an impetuous charge, at which the brigands retreat. Then the soldiers begin to dig at indicated places, till they dig up money that has been buried by the brigands. Into the holes in the ground they put ammunition, and cover it up. Then the brigands make a furious counter-attack, whereat the soldiers retreat. Then the brigands dig up the ammunition. As the result of these two sham battles, the soldiers have got the money they want, and the brigands have got the ammunition they want. Besides the soldiers are just as likely to rob the people as are the brigands.

during the last decade. He declares that California has the unquestioned right to regulate the ownership of lands within its borders, and in the exercise of that right has reverted to the Anti-Alien Law. California cannot, however, prevent the admission of Japanese into the United States. That is a matter which must be left to the Federal Government.

Senator Hiram Johnson, according to telegraphic advices, is opposed to the passage by the California Legislature of any land bill discriminating against aliens generally, though he acknowledges that California has acted within its jurisdiction on the Japanese question.

revolvers during the argument. Foreign officers from the station were immediately sent out and searched the roads mentioned but found no suspicious circumstances and the report was set down as "doubtful."

ROSSI STILL HELD

The Chinese Police Constable, who was stationed only 30 yards from the door of the cafe, insists that no shot was heard by him. It is believed possible, however, in view of the fact that it was New Year's day and that bombs were being fired in celebration of the date, that he might have failed to distinguish the report as a pistol shot.

Further developments in the case await upon the condition of the wounded man. Pending which the French police will keep Rossi in custody.

Manchuria Trade Company Criticised

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 5.—The Times criticises the prospectus, now issued, of the Amalgamated Trading and Industrial Corporation, a forecast of which was recently cabled.

The prospectus announces that the Corporation will acquire the whole of the issued share capital, viz., £40,000, of the British Manchurian Corporation, Ltd., for 40,000 £5 bonds of the new concern.

The Times says the prospectus fails to provide any definite statement of the assets of the Manchurian Corporation, and, in regard to the profit of this concern, it remarks that this is subject to the realisation of shipments now en route to Europe.

The Times emphasises that the undertaking is essentially speculative, and that it is "a violent jump from a little trading concern with a capital of £40,000 to a corporation with a capital of £12,000,000, and in view of the present glutted state of the Eastern markets, the risks of present trading in China are more than usually hazardous."

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 5.—At the invitation of the Danish Minister of Commerce, a deputation of six business men, headed by Sir Charles Sykes, M. C., left London today for Copenhagen where they will endeavor to arrange, in conjunction with an organisation of business men which is being established in Denmark for the purpose, a system of barter whereby trade can be carried on with those countries in which the exchange has broken down. Both countries are seeking in this way to resume trading with Central Europe.

PUBLISH TERMS

London, Jan. 5.—The Times publishes the proposals approved by the Government and Krassin in order to facilitate the resumption of Anglo-Russian trade.

It is proposed to establish a Russian trading corporation for the conduct and development of Anglo-Russian trade. The corporation will be organised in two parts, one in Great Britain and the other in Russia, with a capital of ten millions sterling, equally subscribed by Great Britain and Russia, who will equally divide the profits. The corporation will be a monopoly in Russia, but it is not intended that this should be the case in Great Britain.

The corporation will buy direct from and sell to British manufacturers at competitive prices. All firms will be eligible for membership in the corporation.

DANES IN CONFERENCE

London, Jan. 5.—The Soviet representative, Krassin, held a conference with Sir Robert Horne tonight, as the result of which Krassin hopes to proceed to Russia on January 8 with a draft trade agreement which he is prepared to recommend to the Soviet Government for approval. As, however, Krassin is not empowered to deal with political questions, there may still be difficult obstacles to overcome.

Palestine Loan Is Being Arranged

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 5.—Interviewed by a Reuter correspondent, Sir Alfred Mond, who leaves tomorrow for Palestine, where he will discuss details of the new Palestinian loan with Mr. Herbert Samuel, spoke most optimistically of the future of Palestine.

He emphasised the fact that there was an enormous amount of work to be done, as the country must be practically rebuilt, but dwelt also on the enthusiasm of the Jews, especially in Central Europe, for settlement in Palestine. Many, he said, were actually walking from the Ukraine and reaching Palestine via Constantinople. The difficulty was to restrain would-be immigrants until the land had been prepared for its new population.

Sir Alfred Mond did not anticipate any religious difficulties. There was already a good deal of commercial co-operation between Arab and Jew, he said, and the population would imrrove as the country advanced. All responsible Jewish leaders, he added, were anxious to secure Arab co-operation.

JAPAN ASSERTS KOREANS SLAIN CARRIED ARMS

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Shanghai, Jan. 6.—The Japanese Consul-General has communicated to Reuter the following reply from the Japanese military authorities at Mukden to the report, issued by Reuter on December 28, from a foreign correspondent of high standing in Manchuria, describing the murder of "several hundred unarmed, law-abiding Korean immigrants," and the destruction of many churches and Korean homesteads in the Province of Fengtien.

"Only armed resistance of Koreans was dealt with by the Japanese troops. The Japanese authorities are in possession of the concrete evidence that the so-called churches and schools, though styling themselves as such, were in fact the buildings in which Korean murderers were engaged in intrigues and malcontents were receiving military training.

"There are also definite proofs that the so-called Korean Christians, although professing to be such, were actually engaged in seditious movement in disguise.

"No elders were killed by the Japanese; no Koreans were executed without trial. The evidence of the above is in the hands of the Japanese authorities."

The Life of Concrete Floors Is No Longer In Nature's Hands

A New Scientific Discovery

In the past concrete floors were left to nature once they were laid. Constant walking, heavy trucking and daily usage soon broke the surface and resulted in holes and cracks. Crystalline particles of dust floated into the air, and ground out the delicate bearings of machinery.

These conditions seemed impossible to overcome until science developed a new concrete hardener which puts the life of concrete under human control.

By a simple process new floors can be made to any degree of hardness from that required by ordinary usage to the floors of factories and godowns subject to the severest kind of wear. Almost overnight your present concrete floors can be totally reformed. Then, floors can be made to "set" even in the coldest weather.

All these are made possible by the

FENGTIEN TUCHUN SETTLES DISPUTE WITH MINISTER

Yen Agrees To Supervision Of Famine Loan Of $4,000,000

(Staff Wire To THE CHINA PRESS)

Peking, January 6.—A high Cabinet authority says that the difficulties arising out of the dissatisfaction of Chang Tso-lin, the Fengtien War Lord, with actions of Yeh Kung-cho, Minister of Communications, will be settled without a rupture of the Cabinet. A compromise will be effected.

General Chin, the Premier, says that he is determined to retain this cabinet without change until the reunification of the nation is accomplished, at which time the entire Cabinet will retire in a body.

The Peking Government has been influenced by the suggestion of its Foreign Minister, Dr. W. W. Yen, to agree verbally to the restrictions of supervising the expenditure of the $4,000,000 famine loan. Dr. Yen will now agree verbally to allow the lending banks to check over the sums allotted to relief organisations whose status must be recognised by both the Banks and the Ministry.

The Foreign Minister, however, would rather see millions starve than lose face by signing any agreement implying lack of ability or honesty in the administration of the funds on the part of the Government without the supervision of the foreigners.

Japanese Planning University Here

Monarchical Advocate May Become President Of New Institution

Japanese are planning to establish a university in Shanghai, according to the Chinese press. Prof. Nagao Ariga, constitutional adviser to the Chinese Republic, is expected to be appointed president of the new institution.

It will be remembered that Ariga was the favored foreign advisor of Yuan Shih-k'ai because he urged the dictator to restore the monarchy and was the first to congratulate Yuan when he ascended the throne.

Habarovsk Crowded By Troops Arrival

(Reuter's Pacific Service)

Vladivostok, January 5.—Habarovsk is at present overcrowded, owing to the fact that Soviet troops to the number of 30,000 have arrived from the West. The barracks are full and private houses have been requisitioned.

Particulars of the elections at Blagoveshchensk prove that the Bolsheviki have secured a majority through postponing the elections and using the full garrison vote on their behalf.

Great activity prevails in regard to the coming elections in the Maritime Province. The Communists are monopolising the candidate lists and hindering the other parties from placing candidates before the electors.

The Japanese continue to guard the silver and gold here. They promise to return it for the benefit of the Primoria population, but will not tolerate its transfer to Chita, where the Government is not recognised.

Mixed Court Jottings

A sidelight on the case wherein Adam Brozki, Russian, and Slawislava Felixovna Dzovakovskaya, Polish woman, are charged with shoplifting some $500 worth of clothing from Messrs. Boyes, Bassett and Company's store on Christmas eve, developed in the Mixed Court yesterday when Sub-Inspector Wilson told of a request which has been made by Brozki's wife. She had been to the police station several times, he stated, asking for possession of her husband's passport, giving as her reason for requiring it the declaration that she was unable to secure lodgings unless provided with the document. She was instructed to appear in Court yesterday morning but failed to do so and the Court stated that in her absence no order would be made. The police believe that she wished to secure the passport in order to leave town.

The Chinese chauffeur of a motor lorry charged with knocking down and killing a Chinese police constable and injuring a Chinese civilian on Robinson Road December 11 was fined $100, with the option of a month in jail, by the Mixed Court yesterday. The policeman's death occurred when the lorry's trailer skidded on the roadway. The chauffeur's superiors testified to his general ability and carefulness in driving.

One of the largest moving picture halls in Kioto, the Takaraza, was burned to cinders on December 12. The fire originated in the operating room of the hall, through some of the celluloid films igniting, and before the fire brigade could deal with the flames effectually, the whole structure was burned down. Five houses adjoining were also destroyed. Being Sunday, there was a large gathering present, and as soon as the alarm was given the people were thrown into a panic. A melee ensued, and, though the police have not yet reported on the loss of life, the vernacular papers fear that it must be considerable.

The Canton-Hankow Railroad, Kwangtung Section, is now badly in need of funds. The financial difficulty would not have been so great, had it not been for the maladministration of the Kwangsi militarists, says the Canton Times. During the Kwangsi regime in Canton, some $600,000 were misappropriated from the railroad. As in the case of the Bank of China, Canton Branch, the Kwangsi Party is forcing the road to bankruptcy. During the Kwangsi rule in Canton, some $6,000,000 were taken from the Bank, leaving the notes of this institution without a reserve and causing them to depreciate in value.

AMERICAN FOOTBALL TEAMS READY FOR FAME TOMORROW AFTERNOON AT RACE COURSE

Shanghai Eleven Holding Final Practice Session This Afternoon At Foochow Road Armory; U.S.S. New Orleans Men In Tip-Top Shape For Battle

Tickets are going fairly well, the U. S. S. New Orleans eleven is in tip-top shape and the Shanghai team is not half bad. And taking it all in all the outlook for a pretty fair exhibition of American football on the Race Course tomorrow afternoon is far from dismal. The tickets are not being pushed as much as they might be but there will be a last-day sale which will mean much to the Women's Famine Relief Society in the way of money, it is hoped.

The American community is all excited about the game and practically every Yankee in town will be on hand to see the two elevens clash. The community seems more interested than some of the candidates for the civilian team, if last night's practice session is any criterion. There were 13 men out for signal drill but several who should have been on hand were not there.

FINAL PRACTICE TODAY

A final practice will be held this evening at 5:30 o'clock in the Foochow Road armory and Captain Cy Wilhoit insists that it is absolutely necessary for every man to be present. The game is tomorrow and this evening's practice means much.

A close-up of last night's practice reveals the fact that numbered in the landsmen lineup are several stars. And these will stand out tomorrow. One man to be watched is Anderson, the center, who played at Emporia College in Kansas and handles himself about as sweetly as could be imagined. Last night he passed faultlessly, driving the ball back with power and accuracy and he looks like a regular pivot man.

Then there is Charley Giauque, in the pink of condition, who will probably play tackle. He worked at end for a while and is very fast for a big man. Daniel Boone will show up well at guard. He is sort of a playful little fellow of about 190 and hard as a w.k. rock. Smith is a husky bird, also more or less playful and Stovall, a big Texan, is liable to burst through and break up a few plays.

MALONEY TO KICK

Last night saw Hutchinson, Rodger and Cy Wilhoit in the backfield. Maloney could not show up and the regular quarterback was missing. Rodger will be one of the big men in the game tomorrow. H. D. played varsity football for three years at the University of Chatanooga where he was captain his senior year and later he went to Columbia to finish off his football education. Wilhoit was an impressive factor in the victory over the sailors last year and Hutchinson, while a new man to local football, played with Gonzaga and later took a whirl at professional football.

Mal Maloney is to start the game at fullback. Two years ago Mal coached and captained the Mare Island Navy Yard eleven which raised havoc with the teams around San Francisco. Maloney is a good punter and throws the forward pass in the neighborhood of 5,280 feet. He hurls the leather like a baseball.

SAILORS HAVE STARS

Two men on the sailors to watch are Quarterback Paillou, the U. S. S. New Orleans captain, and Moore, a halfback. The latter is an officer who played some football in his earlier days. Paillou played four years on a crack high school team, was captain the last year and then jumped into the Navy where he has played. Hill, a Marine, at halfback, is a good man and the tackles, Newman and Joseph, are said to be fast and powerful.

The civilians practice today at 5:30 p.m.

The game starts tomorrow afternoon at 3 p.m.

U.S.S. Oklahoma Wins Atlantic Fleet Title

U. S. S. Oklahoma won the basketball championship of the Atlantic fleet as the result of a victory over the squad representing the U. S. S. Florida on the court of the Naval Y. M. C. A. in Brooklyn. The title match proved to be the closest of the series, which began in the middle of October, the game being won by the margin of one goal from the field, 20 to 18.

Teams of eight battleships competed in the tournament, which was an elimination affair. The complete results were: U. S. S. Pennsylvania 19, Arizona 11; North Dakota 45, Utah 29; Florida 49, Delaware 10; Oklahoma 38, Pennsylvania 16; Florida 34, North Dakota 29; Oklahoma 20, Florida 18.

Play Planning In Football

By STEVE BLOOMER

(One of England's greatest goal-scorers)

In The Daily Mail I read recently an article entitled "Football G. H. Q.s." The writer (Mr. Sydney Walton) suggested the drawing up of a plan of campaign before each encounter by the players of the respective sides, and concluded by stating that he might, after all, "be carrying coals to Newcastle."

Now, I read that article with much interest. It interested me because, for one thing, I felt it to show a sincere desire by the author to discover if it were possible to formulate, before the game began, a definite policy of play which would lead to the defeat of the "enemy."

Personally, I do not think that it is possible in the way suggested by Mr. Walton. It is on the same plane as would be an arrangement by players to "fake" a game without the consent and co-operation of the players on the other side.

Of course a plan of campaign could be drawn up easily enough, but it would in all probability be found to be useless when play was in progress; and the situations which arose would have to be dealt with by tactics induced by these situations. But as an International and First League player of much experience, I must say that it is, as I have repeatedly found, an excellent thing for a team to meet on the eve of a match and discuss the opponents of tomorrow.

A very wise plan is—and I proffer it here and now to all clubs—for the forwards to discuss together the merits and demerits of the defence which they will have to face, and for the halfbacks, fullbacks, and goalkeeper to analyse the attacking force that will endeavor to pierce their lines.

Individually and collectively the "enemy" is placed on the dissecting table. But no definite plan of campaign is attempted, for reasons which should be obvious to all first-class players. Talks such as these cannot fail to be stimulating and helpful. I remember in my early years with Derby County how much I profited by our team meetings on Friday nights—meetings conceived by my famous old colleague John Goodall.

A word or two more. The time to form a definite plan of campaign is in the arena during play.

The wise captain is always on the look-out for weak spots in the "enemy's" armour. And should he discover one he quietly passes the "news" round and gives his orders accordingly.

Of course, if the discovery be made only a few minutes before the interval, he keeps it for the dressing-room, and in the second half concentrates more or less, on the weak link. And the captain of the other side—if he be a prudent guide will also have found the matter out, and his policy will be to lend what support he can without causing weakness elsewhere—a policy which will tax his ingenuity considerably.

Other aspects of play often arise which call for the introduction of particular methods of strategy, but such strategy must wait on the actual presence of particular circumstances. To form a definite plan of campaign before the game starts is, therefore, simply a waste of time.

FRENCH BOTHER INTERNATIONAL BOXING BOARD

Challengers To British Fighters Are Involving Unprofitable Matches

BY 'BERKELEY'

London, December 1.—All is not quite bright in the international boxing atmosphere. The French who are members of the but lately formed International Boxing Union are interpreting the rules of that institution in a way that is rather embarrassing to other national bodies .They are challenging for international championships in a manner that may involve several of our leading English professionals in quite unprofitable matches.

Against a stubborn protest by the representatives of this country the International Union passed a rule which reads: "No contest for a worlds, or international, title shall take place without a side stake the minimum amount of which shall be settled by the International Boxing Union.

Since that rule was passed I believe the minimum amount of side stake has been fixed at £20—again in face of a vigorous protest by the representatives of this country. Several Frenchmen have now, I understand, got the necessary authority of their national body to challenge for such world's and international championships as we hold—notably the titles of Wilde and Lewis—and are pressing for contracts.

As the International Boxing Union has the right to fix the amount of the purse in the event of the contestants not being able to agree upon it, and as it is not open to either party to decline the contest on the ground that the amount of the purse is insufficient, it would appear that a very large loophole for strife has been revealed.

WILDE'S PLANS

The British Boxing Board of Control is to consider the whole matter. Now that Wilde has announced his intention of retiring within a given space of time, the French are particularly anxious to have a try for his title; but if they are under the impression that the little Welshman will consent to a contest in the financial arrangements of which he has had no voice they are much mistaken.

In all international championship matches the International Boxing Union has the power to fix not only the amounts of the side stakes and the purse but also the place of meeting. Great Britain and France have 10 votes each on the council—America, who has been given the same voting power, has not yet come in—so that with the help of the other European countries—Belgium (4 votes) Denmark (1), Holland (1), Italy (2), Norway (1), Sweden (1), and Switzerland (2)—France, if she be so willed, can easily do as she pleases in the matter of international boxing championships.

Mr. Charles Harvey, who, with his protege "Kid" Lewis, came on the liner Mauretania, informs me that they are both fit and well, and that Lewis has fully recovered from the illness which so adversely affected his form in America. Lewis has done a considerable amount of training on board and he will finish off his preparation at Wembly. When his health is right Lewis requires very little training.

Basham is doing his work from his home in Wrexham. He is most anxious to beat Lewis at the Albert Hall on the 19th, for victory for him will mean the European welterweight championship.

Brilliant Boxing Staged By Public School; Will Hold Semi-Finals Today

Seven Preliminaries Held In School Hall Before Large Audience; Young, Johanson, Jack, Beesley, Stanion And R. and A. Nobls ton Are Winners

The semi-finals of the annual boxing championship contest of the Shanghai Public School will take place this afternoon, beginning at 3:45 o'clock at the school hall. The preliminaries were staged yesterday. Those who qualified were Young, Johanson, Landau, Rowland, in the Bantamweight division; Jack, Deitrich, Karanja, Cooke, flyweights, and Beesley, R. Nobliston, Stanion and A. Nobliston, midgets.

The contests are open to the public, while voluntary contributions will be received for the St. Bernard's Home. The finals of the competition will take place tomorrow afternoon at the same hour.

BAMTAN WEIGHTS

Yesterday seven bouts were staged, each having a distinct feature. A large number of spectators were on hand to witness the clashes. Details of the bouts follow:

Young vs. Carlson.

This was a very spirited bout. So much so that the referee decided on an extra round. Both the lads showed good training, and Young won on the narrowest of margins.

Herzberg vs. Johanson.

This was also fought with considerable zest and vim, both contestants being fairly well matched. Herzberg, however, sprained his hand in the third round and was unable to continue, resulting in a verdict in favor of his opponent.

FLY WEIGHTS

Keyserling vs Jack.

Both entered in the ring with a great deal of shyness, each waiting for the other to take the lead. Finally Jack gathered enough courage to hit and enough points to cinch the honor.

MIDGET CLASS

Beesley vs Tuttleman.

This would have been a pretty contest had it not been for the fact that the contestants were unequally matched. Beesley was heavier and taller, although the cleverness of the little fellow gave him his money's worth and he only lost the decision through physical disadvantages.

Logan vs Nobleston.

R. Nobliston almost had the decision from the very beginning. It was a one-sided affair. Nobliston had the better of the exchange from the outset and had matters all in his own way. The end of the first round saw Logan bow to the decision of the referee, but he received the congratulations of the audience for his plucky attempts against his experienced opponent.

B. Herzberg vs Stanion

Herzberg and Stanion went at it hammer and tongs. The former was warned by the referee for hitting in clinches and finally disqualified in the third round for repeating the offence.

A. Herzberg vs Nobliston.

For scientific boxing, Herzberg and Nobliston used their fists to the best of advantage. The instructor's training was seen in this exhibition. Both boxed with all the craft of the profession, which made the referee's choice most difficult. However, in the third round, Nobliston did most of the leading and won on points.

Among those present were officers of the British warships in port and local celebrites. Mr. Jack Spunt donated $75 to be expended on special prizes for the young boxers.

American Company Squad Competition Shoot Begins Jan.15

The prizes will be a large silver cup for the corporal and a smaller cup for each private of the winning squad. For permanent ownership, these cups must be won three times in succession or four times in all. Attendance at the range as well as all shooting to count.

WASHINGTON U. IS BEATEN, 28-7, BY DARTMOUTH TEAM

Brilliant Forward Passing Wins Game For Eleven From East Coast

Dartmouth smothered the University of Washington by brilliant forward passing, winning by a score of 28 to 7.

The game was played at Seattle on November 27.

Three of the Dartmouth scores were made direct-through forward passes, Robertson to Jordan. The fourth was made on a line buck following a successful overhead attack. Washington's lone tally came in the first quarter when Abel blocked a punt and carried the ball over.

Washington field, the University of Washington's new half-million dollar stadium, was formally dedicated in a short ceremony preceding the contest. Governor Louis F. Hart and W. J. Coyle, Lieutenant-Governor-elect, a former Washington football star, headed the procession with President Henry Suzzallo of the University of Washington, members of the Board of Regents and heads of Pacific Coast universities and colleges.

No Score Made In Cal.-Stanford Play

Stanford and University of California played a scoreless game in their rugby match of the year on California field. California had much the better of the play and was close to scoring on several occasions, but couldn't quite make it. It was a soft field and play was not easy. Templeton and Righter were not in the Stanford line-up, neither making the trip from Stanford.

Harvard Asks Indiana Game

Chicago, December 4.—Coach Steihm of Indiana University announced today that Harvard had requested a game with the Hoosier football squad next October. The coach said the invitation to play at Cambridge probably will be accepted.

Graphic Story Is Told Of Fatal Events At Changsha On Christmas

Conspirators Trapped And Executed After Being Invited To Conference At Governor's Yamen

(China Press Correspondence)

Hankow, January 3.—Internal troubles had been brewing in Hunan province, but did not outburst until Christmas when at a meeting held in the yamen of General Chao Hengti, Commander-in-Chief of Hunan in succession to General Tan Yen-kai, Chao Hengti succeeded in frustrating a clandestine scheme of his opponent General Chen Chien, who had up to that time been working with untiring efforts in planning to oust Chao Hengti from Hunan.

The story leading to the present struggle between General Chao Hengti and General Chen Chien is long and dates back to the retreat of General Chang Ching-yao, former Tuchun of Hunan. And in order to understand the present situation in Hunan thoroughly, a knowledge of events preceding this outcome is necessary and illuminating.

In the movement against Chang Ching-yao led by Hunan native forces, Chen Chien actively participated, and did no smaller work than Tan Yen-kai and Chao Hengti. But when the notorious Tuchun was removed from Changsha last summer, Tan Yen-kai and Chao Hengti got the most important positions and were in power in Hunan, while the force of Chen Chien was practically negligible. At the same time Tan Yen-kai and Chao Hengti often showed distrust of Chen Chien.

SEEKS RHVENGE

Being disappointed and dispised by Tan and Chao, Chen Chien then quit Changsha to seek revenge. Since then he had been the moving spirit in any movement against Tan Yen-kai's administration. He had been associated with Dr. Sun Yat-sen who planned to take over Hunan for the southern government. From Dr. Sun he got financial support which gave him redoubled force in causing trouble in Hunan.

First he aimed at ousting Tan Yen-kai from Hunan Tuchunship. It happened that Tan smuggled 400,000 copper cash from Changsha to Shanghai. As the consignment passed through Yochow, Chen got the news and arrested the smuggled cash. He telegraphed Tan Yen-kai saying that an arrest of smuggled copper cash was effected at Yochow and urging that the money should be confiscated. Accordingly Tan Yen-kai promised to confiscate same in order to end the story. But Chen was not satisfied with this. He spread the news around, thus creating animosity even among the troops of Tan Yen-kai himself. Gradually all forces of Hunan were against Tan Yen-kai who, being aware of the situation resigned from his post and escaped to Hankow and afterwards to Shanghai.

LIN GETS POST

After Tan's departure, the Hunan government naturally had to undergo reorganisation. This time Chen Chien had great hope in the election of Civil Governor, as Chao Hengti had already got the Tuchunship under the title of Commander-in-Chief of Hunan. But he did not realise his ambition, as Lin Tsu-yu was elected Civil Governor "by ponular election." Thus Chen Chien was again disappointed.

After successive failures, Chen Chien was none the less courageous. He again set out working and plotting against the administration under General Chao Hengti. This he did by propagating among Hunan troops criticisms and unfavorable news about Chao Hengti and by creating mutinies among Chao Hengti's own troops. Finding this was still insufficient, he resorted to lending aid from without.

At this time Li Lieh-chun, former Tuchun of Kiangsi, was planning to attack the provinces of Hunan and Hupeh. Chen Chien therefore united with Li Lieh-chun in plotting against Chao Hengti. Chen Chien was said to have prearranged mutinous troops at all important military posts in Hunan for a final coup de etat on Changsha.

General Li Lieh-chun, having assembled southern forces in Hunan bordering districts, began his attack on Hunan border last week. He sent a request to Chao Hengti asking for permission for passing through Hunan province in attacking Hupeh. Meanwhile he worked in concerted action with Chen Chien conspiring against Chao Hengti.

OFFICIALS CONSPIRE

In order to make their plans effective, Chen Chien had won over several of Chao Hengti's subordinate officials who promised to render assistance in the conspiracy. Lin Tsu-yu, Civil Governor, suddenly resigned from the Hunan government, most probably at the instigation of Chen Chien. Many other important officials under General Chao Hengti secretly joined the party of Chen Chien.

As Christmas time was approaching, wild rumors of fighting were current in Changsha and other parts of Hunan. General Chao Hengti was wide awake, and well knew that he was in serious danger. He also knew that many of his own subordinates were secretly co-operating with Chen Chien for his downfall. At last he extricated himself in the following summary manner.

He suddenly called a military conference at his yamen to discuss the request of "General Li Lieh-chun for permission to pass through Hunan. All important officials, military and civil, were invited by General Chao to attend his important military conference. Chao Hengti had not the slightest idea of discussing anything other than that of assassinating all of his opponents.

He had planted his strong guards and troops around the meeting and had given instructions about what he was going to do with those attending the conference. By nightfall all officials were present except a few. The discussion was opened by a brief address by General Chao Hengti. Those officials under the influence of Chen Chien strongly favored granting the permit, while others objected. As the disputes and discussions grew hot, General Chao Hengti, suddenly made an exit from the audience to a room nearby, and upon his disappearance, his armed troops appeared.

PLOTTERS EXECUTED

Then the trouble began. They arrested all conspirators of Chao Hengti, and executed on spot General Li Chung-lin, Commander of the Sixth Division. Among the other four important officials who were shot before the tuchun's yamen was Mr. Lin Tsu-yu, the resigned Civil Governor of Hunan.

All this happened in the night of Christmas, December 25. Early the next morning, General Chao Hengti proclaimed that he had quelled the conspirators and was trying to clean Changsha of Chen Chien's forces. But in spite of his pacifying tone, the people were panic-stricken. During the whole night of December 25 the streets were filled with folks who were escaping from Changsha for refuge. The whole population was moving.

But this did not exist long. General Chao Hengti put a stop to removing from Changsha by ordering all city gates closed. He also ordered a thorough search for Chen Chien's followers. He executed Yi Hsiang, secretary of Chen Chien and also killed the wife of one of Chen's military officials. Besides all forces influenced by Chen Chien were all disbanded by Chao Hengti.

It is reported that shops in Changsha have resumed business and that order and peace has been restored by Chao Hengti. Another report says that Chen Chien is still assembling his broken forces in Western and Southern Hunan and also in Yochow City to attack Changsha.

LEADER IS MISSING

Chen Chien's whereabouts is uncertain at present. One report says that he has escaped to Yochow, while another has it that he has just returned to Hsinan in Western Hupeh from Shanghai and is co-operating with southern forces there against Chao Hengti. General Li Lieh-chun has already retreated to Paoking district, Hunan.

Martial law has been proclaimed in Changsha by General Chao Hengti. All of Chen Chien's forces have been subdued. Chen Chien's men, however, are circulating news that General Chao will soon resume allegiance with Peking, which will abolish the Monroe doctrine of Hunan.

In general there seems to be no peace in Hunan in the near future as there are so many conflicting elements working against each other. Changsha end of the Wuchang-Changsha Railway has been damaged, and communication with Changsha on this line has been interrupted for five days. Many refugees from Changsha are coming to Hankow by steamer.

THE UNIVERSAL REMEDY

When a fracas lately started "over there" in La Belle France
The cause was fairly easy to define.
A most ambitious person felt a little "in the cold"
—A position "in the sun was his design.
"Dr. England" was consulted and he diagnosed the case,
(His experience was great of Nation's ills),
He prescribed for Kaiser Wilhelm and his horde of satellites
Quite the simplest of "correctives"
—leaden pills.

But now the war is over and the body politic
Is feeling just a trifle sick and sore
All sorts of ills and humours further raise the nation's ire
Till we wonder if we can stand any more.
Still, in times of stress and struggle revolution, riot or war
The wise man keeps his body free from ills
By taking "England's safeguard"—worth a dollar every dose
For they're just the right corrective—

It is reported that Mr. Matsukata has brought a counter-claim of 1,300,000 yen.

SHIP PRICES FALL

(Reuter's Service)

London, Jan. 4.—Prominent London shipbrokers, reviewing the shipping position, state that the value of steamers has undergone an extraordinary change since the beginning of last year. Then it was nothing uncommon to find £40 to £50 per ton paid for new steamers of from 4,000 to 7,000 tons, whereas today vessels of similar tonnage can be purchased for less than half these figures. A new 4,000-ton steamer has actualy been withdrawn from sale by auction with only £8 10s. per ton offered.

Spiral Puttees Enwrap Shapely Limbs Of Southern Belles

Society girls of Wheeling, W. Va., are setting a pace for Dame Fashion. Bare legs, painted legs, gauzy nothings and other freak "leg wear" have all been taken up by America's modern girls. But it remained for the ultra-exclusive Wheeling buds to institute a new "leg gear," the "spiral puttee" hose. The spiral puttees are the same as those worn by our soldiers during the war. They are easy to keep on, keep the limbs warm and fit snugly all around. They come in all colors. The photo shows a modern girl putting on her puttee hose.

Board Of Trustees For Southeastern University

(China Press Correspondence)

Nanking, China Jan. 5.—As has been stated Southeastern University came into being hrough the initiative movement of the representative citizens of the Southeastern Provinces. It xists for the benefit of the people, and its welfare must be ooked after by the people.

With this ideal in view the University Organisation Committee has set to work, and the first step it took at the last meeting was the creation of a Board of Trustees. True, it is an innovation for a national university of China, but to the mind of all the members of the Committee it will prove an invaluable help to the new institution.

According to the plan adopted at the meeting, the Board of Trustees is composed of seventeen members, fifteen elected by the Organisation Committee besides the President of the University and a representative from the Board of Education. This plan has been sent to the Board of Education for approval. Of the fifteen elected members only one is engaged in active official duties, and all the rest are progressive leaders in educational and industrial reforms.

After this formal election their names will be presented to the Board of Education in Peking, which will then send out a cordial letter to invite them to share in the responsibility of the administration of the University.

The invitation signifies that they are not to be sub-officials of the Board of Education; they act rather as friends and guardians of the University.

A majority of them such as C. C. Nieh, K. P. Chen, David Z. T. Yui, C. T. Wang, S. Y. Moh, Chai Yuen-pei, Chang Chiang and Chiang Monlin, are already well-known to British and American residents in China, while the others like them, are held in high esteem by the Chinese people for their strong character and modern ideas.

The creation of a Board of Trustees puts the University in close contact with the people. These men are to be an advisory body to the President of the University, to have charge of the property and funds donated by private individuals to the University, to back it up in time of hardship, and to help it in a consistent policy, irrespective of party politics.

85 Husbands Fall Into Trap Laid By Evangelist

Washington, December 4.—The Rev. B. F. McLendon, an evangelist at a revival meeting, leaned over the pulpit and said:

"It has come to my knowledge that there is a certain man in Washington who has not been true to his family or his religion. This man is in the congregation tonight. If he will deposit a $10 bill in the collection plate it will be taken as a token of his repentance. If he fails to do this I warn him I will announce his name."

Eighty-five $10 bills were later counted in the collection plate.

Believed Drowned As Sampan Capsizes

The sampan contained three passengers according to a report turned in by a Japanese Police Constable and was crossing ahead of the steamer Chikugo Maru when it went over. The sampan man and two of the passengers were rescued but the third passenger could not be found.

AD MEN COMPARE RELATIVE - WORTH OF CHINA CITIES

Interesting Discussion Is Held At Big Meeting Of Advertising Club

Just how Shanghai, Canton, Hankow and Tientsin are reckoned in importance from the standpoint of trade possibilities in the eyes of advertising men was clearly shown at the record meeting held yesterday afternoon by the Advertising Club of China.

The occasion was the regular monthly meeting called to consider the question of a budget to advertise the hypothetical tin of "Triangle" Milk.

According to Mr. John S. Potter of the Advertising Club who presented a proposed distribution of $100,000 to popularise the new brand of Triangle Milk, Shanghai possesses twice the value from a commercial standpoint of Canton, Hankow or Tientsin. These three latter cities are considered of equal rank although there were some present who felt that Canton should be ranked ahead of Hankow or Tientsin instead of equal to it.

Their objections were not considered to be well taken, however, in the case of milk for the reason that milk is considered to be a "hot" food as opposed to "cold" and not in such great demand in the southern and warmer climate.

This distinction between "hot" and "cold" food in the Chinese estimation was clearly explained by Mr. T. Y. Chang of the China Publicity Co., who took as an illustration red beans and white beans. The former are "hot" and the latter are "cold." By this is meant that the red beans have a tendency to richness which tend to heat up the system and cause indigestion and other ills. The white variety, on the other hand, base a cooling effect without causing any bodily ills. These last are preferred in the warmer climates and the red kind in the cooler regions.

A prominent member of a firm of publishers stated that Shanghai and Peking were to be ranked first in importance for the sale of books, with Canton and Hankow next, and Tientsin last.

The next meeting of the Advertising Club will be held the latter part of January when Mr. Low of the Wing On Company will be asked to address the meeting on the subject of Window Dressing as applied to tinned milk.

Berlin Wallingford Undone By Police

Night Watchman Turns Coal Control Offices Into Dancing And Drinking Club

Berlin, November 7.—Berlin is a city of wasted Wallingfords. If the great amount of genius shown in getting rich quick were not turned by general conditions into illegal paths it would be a wonderful city of adventure for brains and industry. Day by day cases occur which strike one as the limit of ingenuity put to base uses.

Otto Busdorf is only what is called a "small official," being a night watchman at one of the Government offices from which coal distribution is controlled—more or less. In that particular office this control works admirably, with the result that it has a godly number of well-heated rooms. The working hours are from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and Herr Otto thought it a pity that all those comfortably heated rooms should remain unused during the hours when the staff was not there, and with that thought a daring idea struck him.

There is on the premises a small canteen for the staff, where "Ersatz" coffee and indifferent sandwiches can be obtained during the day. Every evening Otto turned this into a high-class bar for the refreshment of those enjoying the night life of Berlin. Business flourished, and one idea led to another. He hired the services of several musicians and opened rooms as a night drinking and dancing club.

Director Otto was on the way to riches; but, alas! the police, who are very good at spotting night clubs, raided the premises. They found dancing going on; a well-known film star was the center of a group of admiring international guests; champagne at 400 marks. A bottle was flowing, and among the visitors the police found a thief they had long been looking for, with a lot of valuable stolen jewelry and 37,000 marks in money likewise not honestly come by.

Racial War Impends In Kansu Province Is Report At Peking

(China Press Correspondence)

Peking, January 1.—Consular reports received here explain in more detail the situation in Kansu where previous reports have pictured a racial war as impending. It appears that the overwhelming Mohammedan population of Kansu has of late been worked upon by Mohammedan priests and leaders who have preached a holy war against the Chinese non-Mohammedans. The most prominent Mohammedan official of the province, General Ma, relying upon the popular feeling, has now openly flouted the authority of Peking's representative in the Tuchunate, General Chang, and has so informed the Central Government in a proclamation accusing Chang of extended maladministration.

General Chang's alien army of non-Moslems is loyal to him, as are the various civil officials of the counties throughout the province, General Chang, having followed a policy of nepotism during his long term of administration, has filled all posts, even down to the most subordinate, with his own men, and naturally they support him. On the other hand, the native Kansu army, which greatly outnumbers the imported garrison, being Moslem, is loyal to General Ma and ready to fight General Chang and his idol-worshipping soldiers at the drop of the hat.

TEMPLES DEMOLISHED

Kansu, during the manchu regime, was always governed by a Moslem viceroy or resident. The present non-Moslem Tuchun was installed by Yuan Shih-k'ai, following the iconoclastic crusade of the Moslems of some years ago in the course of which the idol-worshipping villages of large areas of Kansu, Shensi, and Sinkiang were devastated and the temples demolished. Chang's assumption of office was only made possible by the patriotic and pacific attitude of the venerable Mohammedan viceroy, another Ma, who was deposed by Yuan Shih-k'ai to make way for an alien governor. As long as the old Ma lived, racial conflict, due to his influence, was prevented, but now that this influence is removed, it seems bound to break out again unless the Peking government wisely withdraws alien officials from the province. Tuchun Chang has brought the situation to an even earlier crisis than would have come about in the natural course of events by his stupid Mandarin policy of endeavoring to pit one faction of the Moslems against the other.

The result has been to unite all factions in hatred of and determination to oust "heretic" rule. However Peking may regard the matter, the actual fact is that Kansu is, at the present moment, in open rebellion to Peking's authority, the popular hero, General Ma, having informed Peking that the authority of Peking's appointees is no longer recognised.

SOME DESERT POSTS

Although these officials are, where fear for their skins has not caused them to desert their posts, still nominally functioning, the population is obeying the orders and voluntarily placing themselves under the jurisdiction of the Mohammedan leaders whom they consider the rightful administrators.

The primary cause of the recurrent Mohammedan problem of Northwest China is the non-absorption of the Moslems into Chinese society. The great majority of the Moslems neither read nor write Chinese, and, although not really differing in stock, consider themselves a separate race. They entertain an intense hatred of Chinese idolatry, and a constant impulse to take violent measures against it. A great deal of the difficulty could be overcome if the Chinese would establish schools among the Moslems, not to propagate against their religion, but merely to educate the Chinese-speaking Mohammedans to read and write their own language and feel their entity with the rest of the nation.

CROZIER'S VIEW ON MEXICO IS CRITICISED

spirit of equals, to hasten their progress. The situation in Mexico, maintains the General, is all of that in China, carried to its extreme, and without the extenuating and hopeful features. Whether his analysis of the Mexican situation is or is not correct, is not of so much interest in relation to the Asiatic bearing of his argument as the fact that it is upon such an analysis that this argument is based.

In regard to the second point, the General points out that Japan has never given evidence or proof of having intervened in the affairs of a weaker and disrupted neighbor from a predominantly altruistic motive. No responsible public official of Japan has ever, on behalf of the government, stated that Japan took over Korea or Formosa or portions of the Asiatic mainland solely for the purpose of educating the population to become self-governing, nor has the government ever given a pledge to these subjected people that they shall ultimately be given their absolute independence.

On the contrary, Japan has openly followed the purely imperialistic policy of endeavoring to "Japanise" these territories, permanently add them to the empire, and convert their people through education and other methods, into "good Japanese citizens." The extenuation offered by Japan for her intrusion into these territories has not been that of benevolent and temporay intervention, but the old and purely imperialistic excuses of increase of population and economic pressure.

BENEVOLENT MOTIVES

On the contrary, America, submits the General, can, upon the strength of her records in Cuba and the Philippines, lay pretension to the possession of benevolent motives, which, he says, would be the predominant influence in any intervention scheme, and can, without presumption, ask the powers to trust to her the undertaking of such a scheme.

In regard to the third point, the retired ordnance head, as a military man, emphasises what appears to him the utter inability of Japan, or, in fact, any power, to speedily spread its authority throughout the length and breadth of the great Chinese terrain to an extent which would make it unchallenged, and allow absolute freedom to the occupying nation to carry out its administrative reforms.

It is intervention as effective and thorough as this which, believes the General, has allowed America to do what she has done in Cuba, and is allowing her to carry out a program of ultimate withdrawal in the Philippines. General Crozier, and there are many who disagree with him, feels convinced that America has the resources to effectively police, govern and educate, in the interests of its people, and which with a view to their ultimate political self-reliance, the entire country of Mexico.

All that is lacking, in his belief, is the will upon the part of the majority of the American people, to execute what he terms a Christian duty. In regard to the pseudo-parallel case of Japanese intervention in China or elsewhere on the Asiatic mainland, the General feels confident that there exists neither the primarily benevolent motive, nor the ability, to carry out such a policy, although the will to do so checked only by international inter-relationships and the conscience and common-sense of the liberal Japanese element, may give evidence of its presence in Nipponese external politics.

Think Many Drown When Ferry Boat Capsizes In Creek

A number of Chinese are believed to have been drowned when a straw boat, carrying some forty passengers, capsized in the upper reach of the Soochow Creek Wednesday evening. The boat was bringing passengers from the Chapei side to the Settlement side of the creek and had just left the shore when it turned turtle. The Chapei police are investigating and are dragging the creek, but no report as to the extent of the fatalities was available last night.

The accident occurred near the Poo Tsi Cotton Mill, on West Soochow Road. The man who was in charge of the boat, which was of the ordinary ferry boat type, is held by the Chapei police.

Kung Yik Cotton Pays Final Dividend Of Tls. 8

A final divident of Tls. 6, which together with the interim dividend of Tls. 2, makes a total of Tls. 8 per share was declared at the ordinary general meeting of the Kung Yik Cotton Spinning and Weaving Co., Ltd., yesterday at the office of Messrs. Jardine, Matteson and Co. Ltd.

Mr. A. Brooke-Smith presided and was supported by Messrs. F. Ayscough, C. G. Mackie, Chai Lai-fong and Pan Ching-poo, members of the consulting committee.

There were also present Messrs. F. J. Burrett, C. W. Beswick, H. J. Clark, Woo Ling-shu, Pan Tse-chuen, C. H. C. Platt, E. Hayim, J. Macgregor and W. K. Smith, mill manager.

The notice convening the meeting and the auditors' report having been read, the chairman said:

The report and statement of accounts having been in your hands for the past 10 days, I will, with your permission, take them as read.

PROFIT ALMOST MILLION

The nett profit for our past year amounted to Tls. 940,516.60, which, of course, greatly exceeds any previous record and is most gratifying, considering the varying and often difficult conditions encountered.

The year 1920 will long be remembered as one of the most remarkable in the history of trade, as it witnessed the zenith of the after-the-war boom, and also the reaction, with its deflation in the values of all commercial commodities. For the first few months there was a brisk demand for our Mill products at high prices, and we were able to manufacture very profitably owing to comparatively cheap cotton. Unfortunately, local values were unduly swollen by the pernicious system of gambling that takes place between certain Chinese and Japanese operators, many of whom are not legitimately interested in goods from an actual trading point of view. The Japanese financial crisis in the Spring brought about the first set-back to this market, and since then the trend of prices has been continually downward. In local cotton yarn for instance, there was a decline of about 50 percent between March and October. Demand, however, has been consistently steady, and as we have been able to keep our yarn order book well filled, we have come through without any losses in this branch of our business.

CRISIS PASSING

The very serious crisis through which the piece goods trade in China is now passing has of course had its influence on our cloth business, and the handsome profits we were making in the earlier part of the year have been somewhat discounted by the losses we have since sustained owing to a few defaulting dealers. We have, however, dealt drastically with stocks of cloth in our accounts, and we trust we have provided for the worst.

Cotton throughout our past year has been plentiful and reasonably cheap, considering the high prices of mill products. The China Crop was considerably smaller than usual owing to unfavorable weather conditions, but with high exchange rates ruling and Japan being over-stocked with Indian and American grades, there was little export from China, and local mills were readily able to obtain their supplies of fair quality. Useful grades of Indians were also available at cheap rates, but good varieties of American were comparatively dear owing to the general poor quality of their last crop.

COTTON PRICES LOW

During the past few months, all cotton prices have declined very heavily, and we may consider ourselves fortunate in having worked off dear purchases. The small stock we have taken over, as usual, at cost, is reasonably near present values, and is more than protected by our cotton fluctuation fund.

The proposed final dividend of Tls. 6 with the interim dividend of Tls. 2, makes a total of Tls. 8 per share and represents about two-thirds of the past year's nett profits. For the ten years of this company's existence, the dividends will amount to Tls. 24.40 per Tls. 10 share, which is equivalent to an average annual return of 24.4 percent and if the further allocations recommended by the consulting committee receive your sanction, the various reserve funds of the company will total Tls. 610,943.-01, which, on a capital of Tls. 750,000, should be considered highly satisfactory.

With regard to the proposals to write off Tls. 60,000 and Tls. 40,000 from plant and machinery and buildings respectively, I would remind you that this concern was inaugurated in 1907 under Chinese auspices. Unfortunately the construction of the buildings and the equipment of the mill were not undertaken with that view to durability and thoroughness that we ourselves should have given to such important items. Since we took over the management of the company in 1910, we have attended to the general up-keep and improvement of the property and also written down the book values freely. The ravages of the climate and the constant strain of day and night work during the past few years have, however, revealed that whatever repairs may be made to the mill buildings, they may always be inadequate, and eventually we may be forced to rebuild and scrap the inefficient buildings and portions of the plant. It is therefore imperative that we should take advantage of exceptionally good years to write down the book values of these assets liberally and be prepared for the time when they must be replaced. If you sanction the above proposals the plant and machinery will stand in the books at Tls. 171,107.29, and the buildings at Tls. 47,821.81, and if our present policy of depreciating is maintained these items will be written down in a very few years to nominal figures.

The addition of Tls. 75,000 to equalisation of dividend fund will bring the total to Tls. 375,000, which is half the capital of the company.

SAFEGUARD READY

With the allocation of Tls. 30,000 the cotton fluctuation fund will amount to Tls. 100,000, which will prove a useful safeguard in the event of adverse conditions.

By adding Tls. 25,000 to special repairs and renewals fund we shall have available Tls. 75,-943.01 for keeping the mill as efficient as possible.

The creation of a reserve fund, by setting aside Tls. 60,000 will give us an additional reserve that will be available for any purpose.

The amount written off furniture, viz.: Tls. 400, calls for no comment and the Tls. 1,500 written off our Tls. 50,000 worth of Municipal debentures 1919, for which we paid 95 percent, reduces our holding to the present market value of 92 percent.

The bonus of Tls. 22,500 to the staff at the mill has been well earned, and I am sure will be appreciated.

Our contingency against the increasing number of employees who qualify for the Chinese superannuation fund, inaugurated last year, will be covered by the provision of Tls. 15,000.

The proposed donation of Tls. 7,500 to war charities will be sent to the Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs for disposal, probably to the King's fund for Disabled Soldiers and Sailors.

During the past year, the matter of insurance against loss of profit resulting from fire, has been satisfactorily arranged on the basis of the average profit for the previous 3 years.

LABOR DIFFICULTIES

The past year or two have been difficult for all employers of native labor, but we have anticipated any serious troubles by substantial advances in wages to meet the higher cost of living.

Since our last annual meeting, we have acquired a small additional piece of land along one side of our property, which enables us to undertake certain alterations and minor extensions that will prove of great convenience.

As regards future prospects, I am afraid that the financial stringency and general want of confidence must exert a depressing influence for some time, but so far as we can ascertain the statistical position of yarn and cloth throughout China is sound, and we trust we shall shortly experience better trading conditions.

There were no questions and the following resolutions were carried unanimously:

That the report and accounts be adopted: proposed by the chairman and seconded by Mr. Ayscough.

That the consulting committee be re-elected: proposed by Mr. Burrett and seconded by Mr. Clark.

That Messrs. Lowe, Bingham and Matthews be re-elected auditors at a fee of Tls. 1,000: proposed by Mr. Woo Len-shu and seconded by Mr. Pan Tse-chuen.

Mr. Burrett—I think before we leave I should like to propose a vote of thanks from the shareholders to the consulting committee and general managers of the company for presenting such a wonderful balance-sheet. It is not surprising there has not been any adverse comment and I think my proposal will be carried with acclamation (applause).

Mr. Brooke-Smith: I thank you for your kind words which are appreciated by the general managers and also by the consulting committee. I hope we may be able to present a satisfactory report again at this time next year. I cannot hope to be able to present such a report as we have just considered but there is no reason why we should not be able to show a very satisfactory return.

The German Disarmament Crisis

THE insistent, incessant pressure of France for the further disarming of Germany not only is a matter of amazement to many students of the situation in Europe: it is enigmatic to nearly all. Particularly do British statesmen evince puzzlement.

To the plain question of Gen. Castelnau on the occasion of the crisis produced by the resignation of the French Minister of War, December 18: "Has Germany disarmed?"—the Premier, M. Leygues, gave the equally plain answer: "No." But he followed this by giving the following figures regarding Germany's disarming:

Guns handed over	30,000
Guns destroyed	28,000
Machine-guns handed over	65,000
Machine-guns destroyed .	50,000
Machine-gun tubes handed over	197,000
Machine-gun tubes destroyed	52,000
Minenwerfer handed over	10,128
Minenwerfer destroyed ..	7,595
Small arms handed over	2,587,000
Small arms destroyed ...	2,503,000

He added that the German effectives had been reduced to 150,000 men October 1, and were to be down to 100,000 by January 1. Yet on January 3 we find the French sending a note to Germany complaining of the non-fulfilment of the disarmament clauses of the Spa agreement of last July, the time limit of which is now expiring.

It is declared in the note that the stipulated quantities of arms have not been surrendered, that a certain number of self-defence organisations have not been disbanded, that the delivery of surplus war material has not been completed and that systematic resistance has been offered as regards execution of the aerial clauses of the Treaty, while the destruction of aeronautic material which should have been carried out by August 31 has not yet been completed.

The German Government, replying seriatim, according to Reuter, declares that its obligations have either been fulfilled, or if not their exact fulfilment has been impossible. The latter alternative, it states, includes the failure to disband the local forces in East Prussia and Bavaria.

The reply alleges that conditions in these places do not permit of rapid procedure, and further asserts that Germany does not desire to withdraw from the obligations entered into at Spa.

On the same date we have it from Reuter that the British and French general staffs are agreed on the subject of German disarmament, except in regard to the German volunteer formations in East Prussia and Bavaria, where Field Marshal Wilson considers that the Germans are right, owing to the fear of the spread of Bolshevism.

Now the question arises: What is back of all this parley? What has produced it? Why is France maintaining an army of 700,000 men better equipped than ever before in fear of attack by the small and poorly equipped and defeated German army?

Guglielmo Ferrero, the famous Italian historian supplies the answer. "The more thoroughly Germany is disarmed the more fearful and suspicious France becomes, and the more convinced that disarmament is not a sufficient guarantee." Europe, he seems to see, is merely running around in another vicious circle. "Such a terrible tragedy was never seen in the history of Europe" he declares.

Here we quote part of his article, written on December 8, when the present situation was beginning to develop:

"What danger did France want to be guaranteed against? Against the strength of Germany. And in what does this strength lie? In her numbers. The first origin of the war must be sought for in the difference between the populations of France and Germany. But this inequality has not been levelled by the world's war; indeed, to a certain extent it has perhaps been increased.

"At the present day Germany is not only more populous than France but, Russia having fallen and Austria being dismembered, Germany takes the first place in Europe as regards the number of her men, and she will hold that position until Russia rises once more as a united country.

"It is evident that as long as Germany can oppose three Germans to two Frenchmen, France will be always in danger and the entire European system in a state of insecurity, ready at any moment to topple over. France, therefore, asked for guarantees against these numbers, or rather she demanded that the Germans, although more numerous, should have the same weight in Europe and on its destinies as if their numbers were equal to the French.

"Placed like this, the problem appeared to be a kind of squaring of the circle and therefore extremely difficult. But if it was possible to solve it could only be solved either by imposition or by agreement. By imposition if the Entente, like Napoleon after he had conquered at Jena, had profited by Germany's prostration to impose a unilateral limitation of armaments upon her. Or by agreement if all the great Powers of Europe, under the name of the League of Nations, had concluded a long truce to the competition of armaments and the struggle for alliances; and if, on the strength of this truce, Germany had seriously undertaken, in exchange for certain equivalent advantages, to limit her armaments in such a way as no longer to be a menace to France.

"The League of Nations would in that case have been something similar to the Holy Alliance, which was as a matter of fact a truce of this nature, that lasted thirty-three years—the Holy Alliance of the democracies.

"Everybody knows that the Congress of Paris preferred to imitate Napoleon instead of drawing inspiration and example from the Congress of Vienna. Nor is there any doubt that the peoples are to some extent responsible for this selection, because during the six months following the armistice not a single one of the victors in Europe was inclined to listen seriously to talk of a truce or a peace league, which would have imposed duties on all, victors as well as vanquished.

"But even if the peoples of Europe had not been drunk with their victory, even if they had truly desired to conclude a truce, they would not have been able to do it. England's attitude on the question of the seas would have prevented them.

"In a general accord for a truce similar to that concluded a century ago at Vienna, what would Germany have been able to ask of Europe, what could Europe have offered Germany in exchange for her renunciation of the advantages that her numbers might have assured her on the Continent?

"One thing alone—a similar renunciation on the part of England of the advantages that the uncontested supremacy of the seas might have assured her. Leaving aside the question of the seas, a voluntary peace league, that is to say, a universal and sincere truce, became impossible, because all the benefit of it would have accrued to England and all the burden would have rested on Germany.

"Europe would have asked Germany to renounce the advantages of her strength on land in exchange for nothing, just as Europe has asked America to enter and make part gratuitously of a permanent alliance in favor of the Powers of the Entente, in which alliance she would have had all duties and no rights!

"In fact, during the first six months of the armistice England's astute ambitions in regard to the seas were in accord with the madness of the victorious peoples to suffocate that truce between the great European Powers in its cradle, though it was the one thing that could save the Old World from total ruin.

"It is only in this way that it is possible to explain how, without discussion or hesitation, the congress offered and France accepted the compulsory and unilateral disarmament as a sure guarantee, although a similar guarantee had failed with Napoleon when Prussia was much weaker than modern Germany and France was Russia's ally.

"This first trial, so famous and so unhappy, ought at least to have induced the congress and public opinion in all the countries of Europe to ask themselves seriously whether there was the slightest hope that the second trial, made without Russia, or rather with Russia as an enemy, would succeed.

"But nobody seems to have suffered from doubts when signing the treaty, and even today statesmen and writers, diplomats and soldiers, all appear to be incapable of understanding the facts that every day offers to him who has to see in demonstration of the truth that this guarantee has become a thing of terror.

"A guarantee should, by its very nature, reassure and tranquilise; this guarantee, instead, is a cause of uneasiness and prevents France from having faith in the real guarantees on which she might count.

"For this is the tragic knot of the continental policy. France is safe enough for the moment; but she believes she is in danger because they have given her this guarantee of security!

"It does not appear that Europe is threatened, at any rate for the moment, by an act of German revenge, like the Prussian revenge of 1813. The comparison will not hold. If the Entente has committed mistakes, it has not abused its strength as Napoleon did. And Germany made too great an effort during the war, and is therefore in need of a long period of repose, in order that she may regather her forces.

"The present state of Europe is therefore a serious guarantee for France. But this disarmament, which has been imposed upon Germany and accompanied by so many controls, is a permanent offence and a terrible humiliation for her, since it places her in the position of a State protected by foreign powers.

"Now, how is it possible to suppose that a people which up to yesterday was rightfully considered as the most powerful in the world in regard to arms, and was rightly or wrongly admired as the leader of Western civilisation, should from one moment to another submit to being reduced to the condition of Turkey or Morocco, just because she has lost a war?

"Germany will submit to this imposition as long as she is compelled to, by force, but she will always protest against its injustice and will curse and hate the peoples who have conquered her, even if she has no hope of being able to take a prompt revenge.

"And, that is why, in her turn, France loses her peace of mind. After such a terrible war it is natural that a people should reason more with its feelings of hatred and fear than with its brain. How could the fact of some thousands of cannons being destroyed and the effective forces reduced reassure such a people when it knows that Germany is full of hatred and that she would not hesitate to seize a favorable occasion for revenge should one present itself.

"Even although she is disarmed Germany cannot but appear as a danger to the neighbors she hates, with her overpowering population and the terror that is kept alive by the recent memory of what she could do and what she dared to do. And the compulsory disarmament given to France as guarantee by the Congress, comes just in time to stir up afresh Germany's hatred. Europe has already fallen against a vicious circle that is worse than the one in which she furiously struggled before 1914, Germany fears France and accuses that country of oppressing her without mercy; France, in her turn, is afraid of Germany and accuses the Germans of wishing to destroy her. Fear generates hate and hate in its turn is provocation of fear.

"Germany is exasperated by the humiliation of compulsory disarmament and control and this exasperation constitutes the great uneasiness of France, for whose security that disarmament was mainly imposed. The more thoroughly Germany is disarmed the more fearful and suspicious France becomes, and the more convinced that disarmament is not a sufficient guarantee. It is a year since peace was made, and France is keeping 700,000 men under arms in order to keep Germany disarmed; the two countries, one disarmed and the other armed to the teeth, hate each other more than ever because never have they felt such fear, each of the other.

"Such a terrible tragedy was never before seen in the history of Europe. But it is not the sole tragedy: to the guarantees is added the reparations, that the Old World may be driven to the limits of despair."

Overcoming A Difficulty

A consulting surgeon tells many amusing stories about the experiences of medical men. It is nothing uncommon, he says, to find a patient to whom a doctor has been called suffering from a disease quite different from that mentioned in the message received by the doctor. On one occasion a certain medical man received a note asking him to come at once to a case or smallpox, but to his surprise, on arriving at the patient's bedside, he found that it was merely a case of rheumatism. "The is very plainly not smallpox," he said to the writer of the letter. "Why did you say it was smallpox?" "Well, doctor," replied the man, as he shuffled one foot over the other, "to tell you the truth, we knew it was rheumatism, but there was nobody in the house could spell 'rheumatism,' and we thought 'smallpox' would do just as well until you came, and probably bring you quicker."

(Sir Herbert Tree went to America shortly before his death, and in California's sunny climes had a wonderful film made of the gloomy play "Macbeth." His impressions of studios and pictures, as applied to the films, are as interesting as they are instructive.)

A NOVEL GREETING

"At the studio, as the car stops, we are surrounded by a motley crowd, all painted and costumed, among whom are Red Indians, cavaliers, modern, gorgeous Babylonians, and cowboys. Suddenly there is a terrific explosion as a dozen cowboys fire their pistols into the air. This is a welcome!

"Recovering from the shock, and finding myself happily unwounded, I raise my hat to the cheering crowd. My instinct tells me that I am in the midst of a democratic society. A fair-haired little boy of five years old approaches. He is, I afterwards heard one of the most popular of the film actors. The infant phenomenon wore a long garment, on which was sewn in large letters the word Welcome, and coming towards me with extended hand, at once put me at my ease by saying: Pleased to meet you, Sir Tree. By way of making conversation I ventured: And how has the world been treating you these last years? Well, I guess this world is good enough for me! was the reply with a shrug of the shoulders.

"It is a land of many babies, but few children."

CHARLIE CHAPLIN

"Among those whom I met in California was the renowned Charlie Chaplin. Contrary to expectations, I found him to be a young man of a serious and sensitive disposition, who has artistic ambitions of a kind not suggested by his public records, and who in private life is thoughtful and versatile as well as entertaining."

WHERE ALL THE WORLD'S A STAGE

"The work of the pictures is done in an atmosphere of happiness and high spirits, which makes its frequent monotony bearable.

"In the productions there is a systematic absence of system. Sometimes an artist will have to wait one, two, or three weeks, before he is called to take up his share of the work; then he will work sometimes fifteen or sixteen hours a day. The latter was my experience in the production of Macbeth.

"Of Los Angeles it may be said that all the world's a stage and all the men and women merely movies."

HORSES IN PICTURES

"A pleasant pastime is to be found in the mountain excursions on horseback. The horses are well-trained, many of them being used in the wonderful battle pictures of the films. There is only one drawback to these equestrian exercises—the horses, which are wonderfully trained by cowboys, are apt to perform all manner of unexpected gyrations; to their standing up proudly on their hind legs and beating the air with their hoofs one rapidly becomes accustomed; but when by an unconsidered jerk of the reins, one unconsciously gives them the cue to die, they are apt to fling themselves prone on the ground; thus a histrionic instinct is liable to bring discomfort to the rider unaccustomed to the exigences of the film."

BILLY SUNDAY

"Billy Sunday provides a cheap way of getting to heaven. His teaching is of 'the open your mouth, shut your eyes' order. His Hell is inhabited by a knock-a-bout Devil. His chief success lies in saying the obvious: It is better to see than to be blind, it is better to hear than to be deaf, it is better to be healthy than to be sick, it is better to be good than to be bad, it is better to go to Heaven than to go to Hell.' At this there was great applause with exclamations 'How true!'

"He is a retired baseball player, and will frequently use the gestures of that admirable sport in making a point in the pulpit. He has something one cannot explain, or explain away. He is intensely sincere in his belief of Hell-fire, in which he assured us that anyone who did not believe in the God of Billy Sunday would frizzle everlastingly. There is something lovable about the man—if he is never inspiring, he is undoubtedly hypnotic.

"At the end he shook hands with many hundreds. This is called: Hitting the Trail."

Women—And Women

The Eternal Feminine As Seen Through French, Polish And British Eyes

By NANCY BARR MAVITY

Kobiety. By Sofia Rygier-Nalkowska, (New York: G. P. Putnam's Sons).

Our Women. By Arnold Bennett. (New York: George H. Doran Co.)

"The idea would not occur to me to write a book about men," says Arnold Bennett; "the subject would insufficiently attract me, because it would contain no challenging possibilities. Bennett here verifies an observation which has caused me some puzzled reflections of late, instigated by the pyrotechnics with which women have recently endeavored to illumine the supposed Terra Incognita of their souls.

That men should write books about woman's soul "is natural enough, for, women have for ages perfected illusion as their principal weapon. But have women been so long bent on picturing themselves to men as creatures whose sole concern is emotion, and receiving from men the reflection of the picture, that they have themselves come to accept the picture as reality?

At any rate, two distinguished European women writers have recently revealed the supposed eternal feminine: Madeleine Marx in France with "Woman" and Sofja Rygier-Nalkowska in Poland with "Kobiety" ("Women"). The heroines of both books have emerged into the economic world and earn their livings in offices. In both the sole effect on character of this enlarged domain is to give wider scope to their only mission—the finding of men to make love to them. They are bound to love as a drug addict is enslaved by the craving for his narcotic. Their emotionalism is a debauch. Love is their obsession.

If these be true "confessions," then they are wise and just who maintain that woman's place is in the home and nowhere else; women should be caged where they can be looked after and curbed.

Of the two, Madeleine Marx's exemplar of her sex is rather more respectworthy, perhaps because we are more sympathetic toward success than toward failure. She not only succeeds in convincing her husband that two lovers at once are none too many, putting before him a lofty ideal of love which prefers her happiness to his own, but, when both husband and lover have been killed in the war, she is able to go serenely forth in the assurance that a new man is somewhere waiting for her.

"Janina," the heroine of "Kobiety," is a less predatory female. She does not impose conditions, but accepts them. Madeleine Marx's "Woman" is an extreme individualist. But she is not the type to submit to humiliation. Secure of her power in the only realm which is of interest to her, the realm of sex, she would withdraw with dignity if any of her men failed her. Janina is rather the helpless victim in a struggle where men can dictate the terms. The situation with which she is confronted, stripped of much florid rhetoric, is this: Men tire quickly of one love and seek fresh objects again and again; women may be torn by jealousy, stripped of illusory faith, but they are so addicted to passion that they must accept men on any terms. Janina's principal lover is a man of inferior intelligence, whom she despises and with whom she has no community of interests. But his physical attraction for her is paramount.

This view of woman's place in love and life is incomplete in two respects. In the first place it ignores what may be called the friendship element in love. The conception of friendship includes stability or loyalty; and it involves comradeship or a sharing of tastes, ideas and interests. Omitting this friendship element from love, Mme. Rygier-Nalkowska is quite right in maintaining that monogamy cannot be expected. But the ideal of monogamy rests on a more secure foundation than the false assumption that physical attraction will of itself be permanent. Temperament does have something to do with it; so does habit; so, also, does the sense of justice, the unwillingness to take, but not give a privilege.

The second flaw in Mme. Rygier-Nalkowska's study is due to false focus, a lack of proportion. "I take no interest except in what goes on within me," says Janina. The only influences which can touch her life are emotional influences. This fixed idea dominates not only herself, but all the other forsaken women—and all the women are forsaken—in "Kobiety." Gina, whose fiance has abandoned her for another woman, has received a letter containing overtures of friendship from her successful rival: "I brought her a glass of water to calm her nerves, thinking all the time how much, in this, her unjust outburst of fury, she was preferable to the other—the magnanimous, serene, lofty-minded New Woman." Martha, the wife of Janina's lover, is equally at the mercy of the all-devouring passion, and equally without resources outside herself. She reacts, not with jealous rage, but with a morbid masochistic pleasure in her own sufferings, draping her room like a funeral chamber and keeping an album with photographs of her husband's numerous loves.

It is this limitation of woman's interests to that love which is her 'whole existence" which accounts for a curious conviction, expressed both in "Kobiety" and in "Woman"—the conviction, in the words of the Polish writer, that "between one woman and another, no true love is possible." This denial of the possibility of friendship between women runs so far counter to ordinary experience in America that one is tempted to seek a reason for the agreement between the two European writers. In both books, the sole relation between women is that of rivalry for the attention of men; they meet only on the battlefield in the warfare of competition for the same object. All a woman's attractive qualities are weapons with which she overcomes other women and captures the prize; those qualities, therefore, inspire envious hate rather than affection in her follow women.

Perhaps the reason for this one-sided view of women's relations to one another is to be found in the greater seclusion of girls in European countries, during the years of youth which are most opportune for the formation of lasting friendships. Perhaps European women really are dominated by the man-hunt to the exclusion of all other interests. But I confess that I doubt whether national and social differences are quite so great. Rather, I incline to question the accuracy of Mme. Marx's and Mme. Rygier-Nalkowska's analysis, when applied, as the titles of the two books indicate that it is to be applied, to women in general.

The conclusion to be drawn from these soul-searchings, in both instances, is that woman's entrance into man's world of work has had no effect on her singleness of purpose; that her passional obsession has not been simply the morbid result of an enforced narrow scope for her mind and interest. Madeleine Marx's heroine leaves home because she does not wish to be married off by her parents in fulfillment of a business contract. Janina finds in intellectual activity as a scientist a last resort, a refuge equivalent to the nunnery, a substitute for the narcotic which she also tries. She remains to the last incapable of any interest outside herself.

In contrast to these introspections, Arnold Bennett's essays, "Our Women," shine with a mundane but gracious quality of common sense. He wisely quotes the remark of Mary Wortley Montagu: "I have never in all my various travels seen but two sorts of people, and those very like one another; I mean men and women." After a needlessly long and irrelevant introduction he says some wise and true things, which are none the less wise and true for being obvious to anyone who has thought honestly on the subject—the number able and willing to think honestly being of necessity not overwhelming.

A certain clear sanity of outlook, a faculty for keeping both feet in contact with the ground is Arnold Bennett's salient characteristic—and though the quality thus described may not sound inspiring, it is rare enough for a' that. In detail he is sometimes at fault—the fault perhaps of being an Englishman. (Am I in danger of convicting myself of the sin of provinciality by limiting the right view of women to America? Peccavi.) For example, when discussing the control of income, he sheers off from any plan so revolutionary as joint control of a common fund, on the very questionable assumption that "women have less natural gift for economics than men" and that "two people, unless they are very exceptional, cannot successfully run one show." This excess of caution recalls an Englishman of whom I recently read, who maintained that he was under no obligation to let his wife know his precise income, so long as he kept her in comfort. It need scarcely be pointed out that there is an increasing number of families, at least in this country, on whose bank account either member of the family firm may draw, and that neither bankruptcy nor divorce has followed, as Bennett fears they would.

But for the most part Bennett is concerned with the increased efficiency and the closer comradeship which the definite training of every woman in the scientific management of the household and in an occupation at which she can earn her living will bring about. Which one of these two sorts of training will be given major importance will depend on the temperament of the woman—whether she desires to devote herself primarily to household management or to outside work. With woman's economic independence achieved, Bennett sees for the future a form of love built less on the desire to protect or be protected and more on mutual respect and co-operation. The best thing about Arnold Bennett's view of women is the recognition that they are indeed "people," and that the problems of their relations to men, themselves, and the world are broadly human problems, for whose solution rational comprehension is the best instrument.

Studying Stars And Planets

BY GARRETT P. SERVISS

A Boy Scout who has been learning the constellations as an aid to path-finding on the earth, writes that he is puzzled by an examination question which requires the plotting of at least three fixed stars on every chart containing a planet. This requirement bothers him because he has always supposed that the only fixed star is the North Star.

Other Boy Scouts may be equally mystified by the term "fixed stars"—as many thousands of other people are—and therefore it seems worth while to attempt a clearing up of the puzzle.

Every true star falls under the classification of "fixed stars," a term which was invented in order to distinguish between the planets which look like stars, and the real stars. The distinguishing peculiarity of a planet, as far as simple naked-eye observation goes, consists in the fact that it more or less rapidly changes its location with regard to other objects in the sky, while, on the other hand, the stars remain fixed in their relative positions. (They do move, but only astronomers know it).

All together, or all in a body, they appear to make a revolution around the earth once every 24 hours, but this is simply a consequence of the rotation of the earth on its axis, the fact being that the heavens stand fast while the earth turns. But this apparent motion of the heavens as a whole has no effect upon the positions of the stars with respect to one another.

They move like a marching army or like spangles stamped on a moving curtain, each fixed in its own place. But the planets (which are situated thousands of millions of miles nearer to us than the nearest of the stars, although to our eyes they seem to be mingled with the stars) do not remain fixed in position on the revolving curtain of the heavens, but continually, though in some cases quite slowly, change their positions among the stars. For this reason the planets were formerly sometimes called "wandering stars."

The North Star possesses a special sort of fixedness, or apparent fixedness, of position because it happens to be located almost exactly over the north end of the earth's axis, so that as the earth turns on its axis, the turning motion does not affect the apparent position of that star in the sky. All the other stars appear to revolve around the heavens in a direction contrary to that of the earth's rotation, and in circles which are larger in proportion as they are more distant from the North Star.

The North Star itself, because it is not exactly over the pole, but a little more than a degree to one side also traverses a very small circle around the point in the sky where the earth's axis would meet the heavens if extended. But, except to instrumental observation this motion of the North Star is not noticeable.

With regard to the planets, it is important to remember that no one of the principal planets can ever be seen nearer to the North Star than about 58 degrees. The reason is because all the large planets revolve around the sun in orbits nearly in the same plane (same level) with that of the earth, never departing from that plane more than about 3 degrees north or south.

Now, the plane of the earth's orbit at no place approaches nearer than 66½ degrees from the North Star, and since a planet cannot go more than 8 degrees north of the ecliptic plane, it cannot get nearer to the North Star than 58½ degrees. If, then, you should see a large star which you supposed to be a planet, but which was nearer than about 58 degrees from the North Star, you would know that it could not be a planet, but must be a "fixed star"—perhaps a new one.

Another rule should be remembered about the planets. They are always somewhere inside the twelve zodiacal constellations, which constellations are strung in unbroken succession around the whole circle of the ecliptic which also marks the apparent yearly course of the sun around the sky).

One of the first things that anybody should do is to learn to know the zodiacal constellations on sight. All are plainly enough marked by the figures formed by their stars, which sometimes really bear quite a resemblance to the things for which the constellations are named.

The twelve in their order, running around eastward are Aries, Taurus, Gemini, Cancer, Leo, Virgo, Libra, Scorpio, Sagittarius, Capricornus, Aquarius and Pisces. The corresponding English names are: The Ram, the Bull the Twins, the Crab, the Lion, the Virgin, the Balances, the Scorpion, the Archer, the Goat Keeper, the Water Carrier, and the Fishes. These constellations, among the oldest inventions of man still remaining in use and unchanged, form a broad star-decorated highway round the heavens, which is followed by the sun, the moon, and all the great planets.

In midwinter the zodiacal highway runs, in our latitudes, almost overhead at its middle point, while in midsummer it lies low down over the southern horizon. Somewhere along its course you will always find tramping Venus, Mercury, Mars, Jupiter, Saturn, Uranus and Neptune, these most ancient gods and goddesses of the road.

Where Are The Girls Working?

Don't you remember the poor working gir-r-r-rul,
The song-writers did up so brown.
Weeping and wailing through novels and such,
And heroine of every show in town.

About fifteen years ago an astute theatrical manager come across with a melodrama called, "Don't Judge Her Too Harshly Till You Hear Her Sad Love Story," and the heroine was a poor working gir-r-r-rul who had went and trusted a slicker, or, in other words, a villyun.

Later on came "Bertha the Sewing Machine Girl," and "Nellie, the Beautiful Cloak Model." In those days the poor working gir-r-r-rul was having her vogue.

But, now, strange as it may seem, she has disappeared.

Girls don't go to work any more. No, indeed. They are not the unsophisticated persons they used to be. Even the census proves that they don't go to work.

They go to business. Yea, bo!

You don't have to believe the census and you don't have to believe us. All you have to do is to catch a cross section of the conversation in any street car.

"Mayme couldn't come to business today. She's at home nursing an attack of the toothache."

"I was going home from business yesterday when I met Gwendolyn. She goes to business in Thirty-fourth street now."

"Henrietta goes to business in a car now. You ought to hear the girls talk."

"Lizzie has been late to business three times this week, but she always gets away with it. She's one of them blondes."

"It was fierce going to business during the humid spell. I was just naturally bored to extinction by it."

"Agnes wore her Georgette to business yesterday, and, sure enough, she went to lunch with the boss. I knew it was coming."

Nineteen thousand mousetraps were invented last year and three of them will catch mice.

There are a great many most-beautiful-women-in-the-world but we don't know just how many.

There are five hundred thousand newly married couples every year who do not go to Niagara Falls.

If all the elevated railroads in America were run side by side for one hour they would make a lot of noise.

The lady who invented doughnuts died at a ripe old age from natural causes. She never ate any of them herself.

Little Aids To Bolshevism

Getting an ice bill and a coal bill on the same day.

Getting a bunch of 14½ collars from the laundry when your size is 17.

Having a special delivery letter come two days later than though it had come the regular way.

Seeing the same moving picture for the third time in vaudeville programs.

Living up-stairs over a man who owns a motor-cycle.

Trying to write with a woman's pen.

Being obliged to sit at the same table in a restaurant with a man who keeps his hat on.

Destination Known

An amusing story was once related concerning a prominent stockbroker who had a habit of wandering into the larder at night, when at home, and disposing of anything he found there which tempted his appetite. One morning his wife was discussing the question of the day's luncheon with the maid, and recalling a pudding which they had not been able to finish the evening before, she said: Do you know where that cold pudding is, Sarah?" "Yes, ma'am," replied the girl, without a smile, "It has gone to the city."

GERMAN HINT TO ITALY

Ambassador Urges Freedom Of Trade Between The Two Countries

Rome, November 26.—Johann von Berenberg-Gossler, German Ambassador to Italy, in an interview published in the Tempo today advocates the prompt abolition of all restrictions in commercial relations between Germany and Italy. He remarks that the present situation is profitable only to Switzerland, which buys German products, paying for them in marks, and resells them in Italy for Swiss francs.

If direct Italo-German commercial exchanges were made, Ambassador Berenberg asserts, both the German mark and the Italian lira would profit, as Italy would not be compelled to buy in America goods which could be imported from Italy. He adds that Germany must protect herself against Bolshevism, which he says means ruin for every country it penetrates, and all Europe must also struggle against it. Germany, the Ambassador declares, is determined not to tolerate any Bolshevist contagion, as she needs reconstruction and not destruction.
